A CHRISTMAS MESSAGE

One is seldom able to look below the surface of any subject without being confronted with conflicting and often contradictory testimony. In comparing the present with the past, we hear first from the superficial optimist who declares the superiority of the present in terms of material progress and the advancement of the human race. In this frame of mind we turn to another who will speak as if giants dwelt in the earth in days of old, and who can supply you with reasons that are not wholly without cogency and show that the finest performances of modern thought are but an effort to understand the profound past and that even modern science and invention are but a rediscovery of the marvellous wisdom and insight of the ancients.

The truth no doubt lies somewhere between these two extremes. Without minimizing the achievements of the ancients, one who still thinks it is not difficult to demonstrate that mankind is making substantial progress. And yet this progress is not by leaps and bounds, but by slow increments. Or rather by an imperceptible evolution. Here the "Kingdom of Heaven cometh not by observation."

Real progress is essentially slow, for its pace is tedious, painful endeavor. Values are in proportion to the effort expended in producing things. And man is no exception. But the converse of this is that effort is never lost but hands its product forward to succeeding years, and that the slow, accumulation of this product, of the world's spiritual travail renders each succeeding century richer than its predecessor.

Christmas is an illustration of this accumulating wealth. In the idea all that Christians will ever be to mankind was present on the first Christmas morning. As the oak was wrapped up in the acorn all was there. This is the gospel of the cradle, which is the gospel of the Kingdom of God and the gospel of life. It declares that the helplessness of the babe and its attendant innocence is the secret of its wonderful power. It is this that provokes the passion of love and helplessness. It suggests that man's growth is not away from this principle, but an unfolding of it instead. That the door of the larger life is always that poverty of spirit begotten of a clear vision of a great ideal. It makes the cradle in every home a sacrament, and proclaims true life to consist of the thoughts and feelings that gather around the babe.

This was all there from the first—at least in idea. But man's real history during the nineteen centuries since has been but a toilsome struggle to realize the significance of that message and express it in the complex forms of life. Every great one who has risen to a stature above his fellows has made his life but a more complete statement of the same truth.

Indeed the very location of the Christmas festival in the calendar is a statement of the nature of the gospel of the cradle. It is well known that the birth of Christ could not have taken place in December. And yet the choice of that special season of the year as a memorial of the event is full of significance. It was the winter solstice. Up to this point the sun and the year were dipping toward their death. From now the victory of light and life begins. The great processes of nature are thus made a symbol of the fact that a definite realization of the true law of life was a starting point of a new chapter of the world's history.

And after these nineteen centuries a large share of the world wear gladder hearts all the year around because for one week at least out of the thirty-two they are able to get their ideal of life—the gospel of the cradle—measurably expressed in practice. And this gladness is a promise. The spirit that satisfies is going to conquer. The spirit of Christmas is bound some day to become the spirit of the whole world.

Alberta Proves Magnet to U. S. Farmers

"Seeing is believing" has been clearly demonstrated at the Chicago Land Show with regard to the Canadian exhibits, the Central Alberta Development League one in particular. Just closed, with its attendance of 20,000 people daily Canada and Canadian exhibits were largely to the front, and the immense crowds continually at the booths testified to their popularity.

Just back of the Central Alberta Development League booth was the Canadian Northern showing the grasses and grain products of the country in profusion. Then came the Canadian government booth, and nearby British Columbia was represented.

Numbers of American farmers from the states of Illinois, Iowa, Wisconsin and Indiana were intensely interested in the Alberta exhibit. The very fine collection of vegetables was a great drawing card, the turnips, cabbages, and vegetables marrows in particular. Hundreds of farmers said that never in their experience had they seen anything like the 26-pound turnip on exhibition. This came from the farm of John R. Mackintosh, a few miles from Edmonton.

The constant publicity that Alberta has had, is beginning to show its effect. The American farmer is willing, indeed anxious to learn about Canada. He is beginning to realize that it is not all a big bluff, an effusion of the land agents wanting to sell property. To be a farmer and own land in the states mentioned, a man has to be practically very well off. He has to pay from $200 to $250 an acre for his land, and it is an easy matter to show this stamp of farmer the advantages of investing in land in Alberta and the profits that he will be able to make out of it. Take one specific case for illustration. The farmer in southern Illinois raising cabbage is able to sell it for $3.50 per ton. Were he raising the same cabbage in Alberta it would sell for $40 per ton; also, he is not able to raise so many to the acre in Illinois as he would here.

The American farmer is a good, hardworking, prosperous citizen as a rule. He has to be or he could not live over there. He has good farm implements, a reasonable amount of farm stock, and usually is paying a high rent for his land, but will never be far enough ahead to win any. This stamp of man has lots of intelligence and brain power, and it does not take him long to figure out the benefits that would accrue from a removal to Canada on his own land, where his products would bring a higher price.

So improved were this class of men with the Alberta exhibit, and with the arguments set forth by those in charge of the exhibit, that numbers of them told John Chadwick and Mr. Porter that they would make no delay, but would be in Alberta in time for the spring seeding. Others were taking a little more time, but their intention is to migrate as soon as they can get ready to move. P. T. Fisher has been at the land show for the past week. One of his chief objects in going was to get the viewpoint of the man at the other end, to see how the publicity of the Central Alberta Development League was working out. Mr. Fisher expresses himself as well pleased with the work being done. He considers the methods employed most effective, and the class of people drawn to the exhibit those who will make good future citizens.

"You can't saw wood with a hammer" is an old saying worth quoting, so when the representative saw the open plains man, a man whom the publicity line from the Alberta would not wait, they immediately showed him the advantages of Southern Alberta, with its open country.

Mrs. Chadwick also did a great deal of good work in the publicity line from the Alberta standpoint. She talked Alberta with as great enthusiasm as the rest of the representatives, and owing to the illness of some of the members of the party, her efforts were greatly appreciated.

Mr. Fisher remarked particularly on the hearty co-operation that existed in the departments of the land show. From the president to the caretaker, the Alberta representatives received the utmost courtesy and kindness. No hostility of any kind was evident, and as for anti-Canadian feeling, such a thing was not in evidence at all.

On the way down, Mr. Fisher was interested in noting that the left mud and slush in Chicago, from Minneapolis to St. Paul all the way out he found the very depth of winter, and it was only when he reached Alberta that he found the beautiful weather resembling that of early fall more than anything else. Another boost for Alberta if the land show people were only here to know it.

Thomas A. Edison announces his New Cylinder Phonograph Record The Blue Amberol

The Blue Amberol is a musical and mechanical triumph. Its volume is greater, and its tone is decidedly finer than any other phonograph record you can buy. And it is practically unbreakable and unwearing. Careless handling will not injure it, and no amount of playing will cause it to reproduce less perfectly than when new.

Ask your Edison dealer to play a Blue Amberol Record for you on an Edison Phonograph today, or write us for particulars.

The Spruceville Entertainment

Spruceville school house was crowded to the doors last Friday evening, the occasion being the Annual Entertainment of the scholars, and Christmas Tree. The school was beautifully decorated for the occasion, and all who attended report a most pleasant evening.

Miss Archibald, the teacher in charge of Spruceville school, had the children drilled to perfection, and the very capable manner in which they performed their parts, speaks well of her ability.

Rev. G. McIntosh filled the position of chairman in a most pleasing manner. A large number of Lacombe citizens attended.

The program was well arranged, and we do not care to attempt a criticism for every item on the long program was good. One item deserving of special mention, was the violin selection by Irwin Gottschlich. This lad is only a little larger than a violin, but displayed considerable ability with the instrument, and will doubtless develop into a first-class musician.

Following is the program:
Recitation—"The Merry Bells."
Chairman's address.
Recitation—Erna Gottschlich.
Dialogue—"The Election of the Future."
Recitation—Boyd Crocker.
Violin selection—Irwin Gottschlich.

The Railways of The Province

Edmonton, Alta.—Six hundred and ninety-eight miles of steam lines were constructed in Alberta during the first ten months of 1912, according to a statement prepared by the provincial department of railways. The present mileage in operation in the province is 2,798, as against 2,100 miles in 1911. The mileage in previous years follows: 1910, 1,782; 1909, 1,505; 1908, 1,366; 1907, 1,284; 1906, 1,267; 1905, 1,060. The increase from 1909 to 1912 is without a parallel in the Dominion of Canada.

The Canadian Northern railway company actually built during the ten months in 1912 a greater mileage than the total of all previous years. At the close of 1911 the road had 329 miles of line. This year it has 792 miles, an increase of 463 miles for the year. The Grand Trunk Pacific built 235 miles, giving the company 639 miles in the province.

The Canadian Northern Railway and the branch line company have 448 miles of grade ready for steel. The Grand Trunk has 34 miles, and the Edmonton-Dunvegan and British Columbia has eight miles of steel laid and 70 miles of continuous grade completed. Track laying will continue through out the winter at the rate of 6,000 feet a day. The work that has been actually completed is the best evidence of the growth and progress of the provinces of Alberta, which today has a population of 500,000, as compared with 372,000 in 1910. This road construction also is an index of the development in commercial, industrial and agricultural lines, and the resultant prosperity of the cities and towns.

The Canadian Pacific Railway company and the Alberta Railway and Irrigation company, which was absorbed by the first named early in 1912, controlled the railways in the province in 1905. The Canadian Pacific operated 1014 miles. The Canadian Northern entered the field in 1906, when it built 178 miles of road, which was increased to 220 miles the following year. The Canadian Pacific also made extensions, bringing its mileage to 1,558. The Grand Trunk Pacific crossed the eastern provincial boundary in 1908 adding 40 miles to the total trackage in Alberta. It was the only company that carried on construction that year. The company built 60 miles in 1909, when the Canadian Pacific increased its mileage to 1,042. The Grand Trunk Pacific added 184 miles to its main line and built 118 miles of branch roads in 1910, bringing the total of all lines to 1,782 miles. The Grand Trunk Pacific completed 384 miles in 1911, while the Canadian Northern built 320 miles. Today the Canadian Pacific has 1,857 miles.

The Climate of Alberta

Of all the questions that confront the prospective newcomer to Alberta probably none are given greater consideration than that of the climate. Most people are well assured that a goodly competence may generally be acquired without an inordinate amount of effort but to live in the great consideration and how can one live where the winter breathes with a thud and knocks the bottom out of the thermometer.

Well, let us see the record for Central Alberta in this month of December. Instead of a winter's chilling blast we find that a week before Christmas as yet no terror for the Alberta resident. There is not enough cold weather to stir up enthusiasm for curling or the king of winter sports. The snowfall is scarcely perceptible, and the major horn instead of the shaggy bells is heard along the country roads. Motorists claim that the roads and trails are as smooth as a billiard table and afford more enjoyment than at any time during the year.

The still waters of Barnett Lake have permitted skating for the past few weeks, but the temperature has never been much below ten degrees of frost and at high noon the thermometer has registered forty and fifty degrees. Many creeks are still running streams of water as in the month of September.

Instead of depending on frozen mud for the Christmas season it is possible to still shoot wild duck on the wing. A flock was seen near here last week. Not even the gophers have taken to their winter quarters, as several have been seen in the fields and along the roadside during the past week.

Down in Eastern Canada, where snow lies on the ground, the live stock breeders and dairy farmers have long ago commenced giving their stock extra winter rations. Not so in Central Alberta. In this district the cattle and horses are still feeding on the prairie grass and are putting on flesh as in preparation for a new season of labor.

These are facts that will startle those who are accustomed to speak of the bleak Alberta winters. We who have our home in this province, expect opportunity in the first two months of the new year for indulgence in our popular winter pastimes, but enter this period with the assurance that the back of what might have been a rigorous winter is fairly well broken.

We Can Protest

(Grain Growers' Guide).
The two political naval policies are now public and no human power can prevent the people of Canada being taxed $35,000,000 to build a navy. Even though the expenditure is decided upon it is still not out of place to consider why this huge tax is necessary in an age of peace, when the tendency is to danger less more people.

The memorandum prepared by the British Admiralty for the Canadian government makes two things abundantly clear. First, there is no emergency, and, second, Britain intends to keep her own navy sufficient for her own needs, entirely independent of what Canada may do. It would be folly for Britain to do otherwise. The possibility, therefore, of the Empire being in danger has been settled. If he pay behind him, "you" then resolves itself into a Canadian question, no matter which of the political policies we consider. We hear that our respect demands a navy, that we must protect our trade for beer or gin or other wares. He doesn't stop down town to yawn with every chronicle fatter, but he doesn't shake the dice or make a hand at cards or play a better plan every public expenditure. This is due to the fact that we raise our revenues by a "protective tariff." No one now has the hardihood to deny that for every dollar of revenue raised two dollars additional are taxed out of the people by the "protected interests," and divided up by the Triple Alliance—Banks, Railways and Manufacturers. Thus it is perfectly clear that this triple alliance will favor every huge expenditure the political parties can think of. And it is the same triple alliance that leads in the waving of the flag and shouting the national anthem. They are the only ones who stand to make money out of their protestations of loyalty. They also will reap a harvest of tin pot titles as an additional reward. But what of those in Canada who are today being taxed to the very limit of endurance? What of those who live in poverty though within sight of the castles of the rich in every Canadian city? What of those who struggle as common people of Canada have our Western frontiers? What do they need of a navy? The common people of Canada have never asked for a navy. The talk of protecting trade routes is sheer nonsense, as is the talk of foreign invasion. There is no foreign enemy that we need fear half as much as our own made-in-Canada Barons of the cloth who are being led astray by the flag waving and loyalty shouting of the politicians. The money will be voted and the people will be taxed, but we should have the moral courage to enter our protest and make a start towards peace, when Canada will move towards peace and good will towards men. The two policies should be put to a referendum, where the people may decide, and have the matter settled once and for all.

HON. FRANK OLIVER BREAKS FROM THE LAURIER POLICY

A real emergency does exist! Great Britain is in danger of war with and defeat by Germany. Germany will be the first prize claimed if Germany be the victor! Great Britain cannot be at war and Canada not in the conflict! This empire must be defended in all its parts or it will be lost.

These are choice excerpts from the speech of the Hon. Frank Oliver on the naval policy of the government, in the house of commons on Tuesday, and needless to add, Sir Wilfrid Laurier was present in the house, and his benches shared his chagrin. If Mr. Oliver failed to stand to sing the National Anthem, he boldly stood out on this occasion from his seat. He even went further than the author of the present naval policy and the members of the cabinet, because he expressed the belief, not that an emergency is to be apprehended, but that it is really existent and comprehensive.

Germany has long suffered under the disabilities of an increasing population within limited borders, which borders cannot be extended but by conquest, and it must have an outlet somewhere to provide colonial opportunities for its surplus population who are unable to be dealt with in the fatherland. Naturally, if Great Britain were drawn into a beligerent conflict with Germany, and lost the day, Germany would first seize upon Canada as the ideal Eldorado for those for whom it cannot provide either room or living opportunities at home, because Australia is too far distant to meet its requirements, and New Zealand is too small to provide for its surplus, except under conditions that in a few years would outrival in inadequacy those obtainable at home.

Mr. Oliver made no mistake in framing his points in epigrammatic form, and he will be appreciated for the bold stand he took against the Laurier policy, with which he only manifested agreement in so far as it advocates what the Borden policy provides for—a Canadian navy in due course.

THE GOOD PROVIDER

He brings home hams and fruits and jams and yarbs and canned tomatoes, he brings home home peas and beans and cheese, and sweet and sour potatoes. He's loaded down when from the west he comes, if he pay behind him, "you" ways was old Santa Claus, his wife and kids remind him. He doesn't fool his time at pool, at billiards or at checkers, nor does he store his way for beer or gin or other wares.

He doesn't stop down town to yawn with every chronicle fatter, but he doesn't shake the dice or make a hand at cards or play a better plan every public expenditure. This his filthy lucre. He wants to see his household be a place of peace and plenty, so to his shack he carried back things in a bushel measure. He brings home hats and patent hats to fix his daughter's tresses, he brings home books and strong shoes, and a pair of pants and dresses he brings home books and shepherds' crooks and New Orleans molasses, and pie and tart and works of art, and Browning's "Pippa Passes." The wolf before his cottage door jumps amble up its howling, the wife is glad and so is dad, when winter winds are howling.

Santa Claus Lives

We take pleasure in answering at once the communication below, expressing at the same time our gratification that the faithful author is numbered among the friends of the Western Globe.

Dear Editor:
I am eight years old. Some of my friends say there is no Santa Claus. Papa says "If you see it in the Globe it is so." Please tell the truth. "Is there a Santa Claus?"

Virginia, little friends are wrong. They have been affected by the skepticism of a skeptical age. They do not believe except what they see. They think nothing can be which is not comparable to their little minds. All minds, Virginia, whether they be men's or children's, are little. In this great universe of ours man is a mere insect, an ant, in his intellect as compared with the boundless space which he is traversing, by the intelligence capable of grasping the whole of truth and knowledge.

Yes, Virginia, there is a Santa Claus. He exists as certainly as love and generosity and devotion exist, and you know that they abound and give to your life its highest beauty and joy. Alas! how dreary would be the world if there were no Santa Claus! It would be like a dreary, cold, bleak, shapeless world, if there were no Virginia, there would be no child-like faith then, no poetry, no romance to make tolerable this existence. We would have no enjoyment except in sense and sight. The eternal light with which childhood fills the world would be extinguished.

Not believe in Santa Claus! You might as well not believe in the fairies! You might get papa to hire a man to watch the chimney on Xmas Eve to catch Santa Claus, but even if they did not see Santa Claus coming down what would that prove?

Nobody sees Santa Claus, but that is no sign that there is no Santa Claus. The most real things in the world are those that neither children or men can see.

Did you even see fairies dancing on the lawn? Of course not, but that's no proof that they are not there. Nobody can conceive or imagine all the wonders that are unseen and unseeable in the world.

You may tear apart—the baby's rattle and see what is inside, but there is a veil covering the unseen world which not the strongest man, nor even the united strength of all the strongest men that ever lived, could tear apart.

Only faith, fancy, poetry, love, romance, push aside that curtain and view and picture the beauty and glory beyond.

Is it all real? Ah, Virginia, in all this world there is nothing but the unseen world, but there is a veil covering the unseen world which not the strongest man, nor even the united strength of all the strongest men that ever lived, could tear apart.

Enthusiastic Meeting Held This Week

It looks like nice open weather for Xmas, unless a sudden change comes soon.

Bert Williams is making the most of this weather and good roads; he motored to Red Deer on Friday last with Billie Sambrook, and back, via Lacombe and is headed for Lacombe this morning.

Dick Sambrook is expected up from Red Deer today to spend the holidays at Bentley.

The dances on Saturday night at the hall was very well attended, and an enjoyable time was had.

Miss K. Bulman, now of Calgary, arrived on Friday to holiday with her many Bentley friends.

The turkey shoot on Saturday brought many marksmen from the surrounding country into Bentley. W. Sambrook was among the sharpshooters that won several turkeys.

Autoing, ice-boating and skating on Gull Lake are some of the chief pastimes of the place these days.

James McPherson is billing a big dance for New Year's Eve, see bills and be sure and attend.

A very enthusiastic meeting was held in the interest of the electric railway at Rimby on Thursday night last, and the subscription of stock exceeded all expectations. That district now has its share of stock taken and Mr. Taylor is very elated over the outlook. He says that the road is now assured and work will be commenced in the spring.

We failed to announce the arrival of the Rev. T. Mitten, a week ago last Thursday, with his wife and two children. Mr. Mitten has taken the Church of England charges here, and moved into the new W. B. McPherson house.

Died, on his way to Lacombe, with his parents, Sunday, Dec. 22nd, the infant son of Mr. and Mrs. Emmett Hankins. The baby has been sick for some time, and they were on their way to Lacombe for treatment.

ANNOUNCEMENT.
James F. McPherson wishes his many customers a Merry Christmas and a Happy New Year and many thanks to them for their past patronage, and hopes for a continuance of the same under his new cash system. Please bear in mind that this cash system must apply to all alike as favors cannot be shown, but produce that we can handle, as well as good notes, will be considered as cash.

Wishing all a prosperous New Year, I am, yours respectfully,
JAMES F. McPHERSON.

STRUCK GAS.

While boring for water at the experimental farm, a strong flow of natural gas was struck on Monday afternoon. There was considerable force to the flow, and mud and water was shot up into the air many feet. The gas burned quite freely when lighted, but the driving down of the casing shut off the supply.

Medicine Hat has nothing on Lacombe.

Mr. Bill Ginnell.

A very enjoyable evening was spent at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Symonds last Friday, when their friends to the number of about twenty-five, gathered there to surprise them and spend an evening at cards, in which game both Mr. Symonds and Mr. Beley excelled. The ladies spent the evening in social chat. The young folks regaled the evening with only young folks. Refreshments were served by the visiting ladies and at a late hour all vended their way home, charmed with the genuine hospitality of their host and hostess.

Bunch and Simonds finished thrashing last week, after a run which began on the 19th of September, during which time only two days were lost on account of bad weather. 90,000 bushels was the season's thrashing for this machine. Not too bad considering there were three other machines working in this neighborhood. They report a better quality of grain than last year.

A NARROW ESCAPE.

A Stettlerite named Hansen had a very narrow escape from death on Monday. He boarded the express for the north thinking it was the Stettler train, and had rode a few yards when he discovered his mistake. He then attempted to jump from the moving train, and fell between the train and the platform. His head struck a box on the wheel of the first coach, and he was rendered unconscious. In this condition he was dragged the length of the platform, his head only a few inches from the wheels, and his legs on the platform. A spectator noticing his predicament grabbed him by the legs and pulled him from his perilous position. He was badly cut up about the head and badly bruised, but on being examined at the hospital it was found that he was not seriously injured, and will be around again in a few days.

REST ROOM.

The W. C. T. U. will hold a meeting at the "Rest Room" on Friday, Dec. 27, at 3 o'clock.

Ladies making use of the "Rest Room" in the Comet Theatre, are requested to register their names, so that the committee may know to what extent it is being patronized and appreciated.

St. Andrew's Xmas Entertainment

St. Andrew's Church was crowded last Friday night at the Sabbath school Christmas tree and entertainment. After the singing of the hymn, "All Hail the Power of Jesus Name" and prayer by the pastor, the program was opened with a chorus by the school. This was followed by a recitation, "Robbie Watt's Action Song, Five Boys; Recitation, Marion Watt; Dialogue, Four Boys."

Then there came the main part of the program, the exultations, "The Crowning of Christmas," which, under the able leadership of Mrs. Poole, was well rendered in every part and much enjoyed. Just as the cantata was closing, jolly St. Santa appeared, as young in heart as ever, though somewhat tired with his long journey and heavy burden. A crown was waiting for him somewhere and little Margaret McKerracher brought it forward, and placing it very graciously on his head, crowned Santa King. The entertainment closed with the singing of the National Anthem. Thereafter suitable gifts from the beautiful Christmas tree were given to all the scholars and a bag of candy handed to each one leaving the church.

The entertainment was very successful, and everyone went home, having spent a pleasant evening.

Mr. D. Cameron, superintendent of the school, presided.

CHRISTMAS SERVICES.

There were the usual Christmas services in the Presbyterian Church last Sunday. In the morning the subject was "The Birth of a Savior," and in the evening, "The Wise Men Bringing Their Gifts to the King." At the evening service, in addition to the Christmas Hymns, there was the following special music: "A solo, 'A Dream of Bethlehem'" by Mrs. W. F. Graham; a duet, "The Prayer of the Wanderer," by Miss Collings and Mr. C. McDougall; and an anthem, "The Prince of Peace," by the choir. This special music, which was well rendered, added much to the enjoyment of the service.

I am open to buy a limited supply of green feed.—A. Gilmore.

THE THREE GUARDSMEN

The Gurney-Oxford Range is fitted with three devices which constantly and uncompromisingly stand on guard to see that the fire is always under perfect control—that the coal bills are sheared down to the lowest figure—that the oven is always evenly and properly heated—that no clinkers obstruct the free burning and proper ventilation of the fire.

The Gurney-Economizer, fitted on the smoke pipe, is the only draft you have to attend to; a small lever put up or down entirely regulates the fire. It saves one ton of coal in six. It carries little heat up the chimney—only the smoke. It feeds the gases which burn to the fire-box, and it cannot be had on any other range than the Gurney-Oxford.

The Gurney-Oxford oven is surrounded by flues that carry an equal amount of heat to all sides. This almost guarantees results in cooking by providing an even evenly heated, without cold corners or variation.

The Gurney-Oxford Grate is the result of exhaustive tests to find the proper carrying surface for the fire. The fire has abundant air to breathe, and the less amount of coal burned is all consumed. So then, the housewife who has the "Three Guardsmen" watching over her range, will experience security and satisfaction in cooking that is not provided by any other range.

The Gurney-Oxford works constantly for its owner's peace of mind, and it supplements her efforts to make each meal one of absolute satisfaction.

Every woman who has had experience with the Gurney Economizer cannot help telling her friends the satisfaction of being able to regulate the fire by turning up or down one small lever. She tells about the flues that make and keep the oven always evenly heated, but above all she is enthusiastic about the golden brown biscuits, the light delicious bread and pastry, the roasts and fowl done to the queen's taste, that her Gurney-Oxford turns out.
